Ask the Joint Commission has been a popular and useful feature in Hospital Pharmacy for nearly ten years. The question-and-answer format turns even the most bureaucratic protocols into topics of relevance and interest. The questions are grouped by subject area and updated/supplemented as needed. Other review materials include an overview chapter, including examples of JCAHO-designated "best practices" in the medication-use process. As health care institutions grapple with the challenge of reducing medication errors and complying with JCAHO guidelines, this book is a welcome resource prior to a JCAHO review as well as any time a question about compliance arises. The author, Darryl Rich, is Associate Director, Surveyor Development and Management, Division of Accreditation Operations, Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.
